'WOMAN SLEW MRS. BAILEY'

FATHER CUTS OFF ELOPING DAUGHTER

SAYS PAIR FLED TO MONTREAL

J. H. Hallian, father of Fern Hallian, the beautiful eighteen-year-old girl who on Wednesday eloped with Louis Eisman, her father's chauffeur, today made a will cutting off the girl absolutely so long as she lives with Eisman.

Police and detectives are scouring New England as far north as Canada for the fleeing pair.

Mr. Hallian in his will today provided:

1—That Louis Eisman shall never under any circumstances touch a penny of his quarter of a million-dollar fortune.

2—That all his property shall be held in trust, the income going to his wife.

3—That not one penny shall be paid to Fern Hallian so long as she remains with Eisman.

4—That after his—Mr. Hallian's death—if the daughter leaves Eisman and returns to her home, the mother, Mrs. Hallian, may give the daughter what she wishes.

MONTREAL CLEW.

The elopers, if a telephone message received by Mrs. Hallian today is to be believed, are already in Montreal.

This message came from a girl who said she was a friend of Eisman. She said:

"I cannot tell you my name, Mrs. Hallian. But I can tell you that Louie and your daughter left yesterday morning for Montreal. They intended to go to his sister there to be married, and they probably arrived there last night."

Mrs. Hallian at once notified her husband, who got in touch with the Montreal police and hoped to be able to capture the pair. He has offered $100 reward for information that will locate them. Mrs. Hallian said today:

"What anyone can do, we will do. We will never give up our fight to punish this man."

EXPECT WHITE SLAVE CHARGE.

One move today was expected to be a visit on the part of Hallian and his attorney to the United States District Attorney, to seek a warrant for Eisman on a white slave charge.

A warrant has already been issued charging him with abduction.

It was learned today that the affection of Fern Hallian for her chauffeur was well known in Hull. One man said:

"When he drove her anywhere, she used to sit on the front seat with him, and they were, evidently, the best of friends. I have seen her drive down to meet her father, sitting on the front seat, but before her father would come, she would move back to the tonneau."

Eisman is said to have boasted to

RE-ENACT TRAGEDY IN OFFICE

NEW YORK, July 3.—The murder of Mrs Louise Bailey in the office of Dr. Edwin Carman at Freeport, L. I., was re-enacted today on the same stage with Dr. Carman, District Attorney Smith, Sheriff Pettit and Chief of Police Roland M. Lamb as the actors. At the conclusion of the performance Sheriff Pettit announced that it had been demonstrated that the murderer intended to kill Mrs. Bailey and not the doctor.

The sheriff said with emphasis that Mrs. Bailey was undoubtedly killed by a woman, whose arrest was deferred because the officials did not have the evidence to hold her. The purpose of restaging the tragedy was

BOSTON TRAIN IN DANGER

DANBURY, Conn., July 3.—The third attempt in a few weeks to wreck the Federal express bound for Boston due here at 4:30 on the New Haven road was made today, when a part of a tie was wedged into a frog 200 yards from the local railroad station.

The locomotive of a freight train from Maybrook to New Haven backing into the yard to take water and leave a car, struck the obstruction, wrecking the locomotive and tearing up the track for a considerable distance.

The Federal express was flagged and held here until the track could be cleared.

This is the second attempt to wreck a train on the New Haven road in three days, the last one being at Berlin.

DETECTIVES ON WATCH.

Since the second attempt to wreck the Federal on June 23, when a tie jammed into the track was struck by a freight train, the railroad yards here have been swarming with railroad detectives, who have been aiding the local police to apprehend the wreckers.

That someone who knows the railroad sleuths is responsible for the wrecks is the belief of the police, as the last of the road special agents left the city last night, so that there was little danger of detection this morning.

The tie was placed on the left of the track, so that it would not be in sight of the engine driver as he leaned out of the right side of the cab.

The Federal had six heavily loaded sleeping cars filled with holiday travelers into New England, one passenger coach and one combination smoker and baggage car.

That the wreck of the train would have been complete was indicated from the smashup of the freight engine which was in charge of Engineman Campbell. The pilot was buckled and the front of the engine badly stove in. No one on the engine was hurt.

IRON WEDGE IN FROG.

The attempted wreck of the Federal five weeks ago was by driving an iron wedge into a frog in the yards here. The express ran over the obstruction without serious damage, and the wreckers evidently profited by this experience, for both attempts since have been by the use of ties jammed into the frogs in such a way that the derailment of the train was inevitable.

Walsh in Message Asks $100,000 for Quick Fire Relief

Governor Walsh this afternoon sent a special message to the Legislature asking that $100,000 be voted at once for the relief of Salem. If the money is voted, the cash will be sent to Salem tonight from the State treasury. The Governor found that the State has the right under the law to vote money for such purposes as Salem fire relief.

Start Work at Once On New Appraisers Stores for Boston

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Newton announced today that building operations in the new appraisers stores structure for Boston would begin at once. The plans for the new building have been approved by Secretary McAdoo after considerable delay, due to objections by Boston business men over the character of the building which the government proposed to construct.

One of the tenants on the site of the new building at Northern and Atlantic avenue has a lease which will not expire until December 31. This lease will not interfere with the start of the work. The department expects that the $900,000 building will be ready for occupancy within a year.

HARVARD TO RACE UNION FOR WORLD ROWING TROPHY

HENLEY-ON-THE-THAMES, England, July 3.—The Grand Challenge Cup—the chief rowing trophy of Great Britain and the classic rowing trophy of the world—will go to the United States.

This was determined today when the second eight of Harvard defeated the team of the Winnipeg Rowing Club and the crew of the Union Boat Club of Boston beat the eight representing the Mayence Rowing Club of Germany in the semi-finals.

The elimination of the Canadians and Germans resulted in two American crews being left to fight it out in the final tomorrow.

CUP TO CROSS ATLANTIC FOR FIRST TIME.

The time of the Union Boat Club eight was seven minutes, the same as that of the Harvard team. The Germans made a desperate spurt in the last few yards of the race, but could not overtake the Yankee oarsmen.

This is the first time since the inauguration of this famous race in 1839 that there has not been an English team competing in the finals. On four occasions Belgian crews have captured the trophy, and once it went to Australia, but this is the first time for it to cross the Atlantic.

The race between the Boston and Mayence crews was the most thrilling that had marked the regatta.

Both crews collapsed as they crossed the finish line. Boston took the lead at the start and led by a quarter of a length at the quarter-mile. The American shell had the same advantage at the half mile, but the Germans began to creep up and the Bostonians led by only a third of a length at the three-quarters.

At the mile they were only a quarter of a length ahead and a last desperate spurt brought the Germans

ITALIAN WONDER DEFEATS DIBBLE IN THE "DIAMOND"

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, July 3.—Sinigaglia, the powerful Italian oarsman, defeated Robert Dibble of the Don Rowing Club of Toronto, the American single scull champion, in the semi-final of the race for the diamond sculls.

Sinigaglia won by five lengths, his time being eight minutes and thirty-three seconds. Dibble collapsed as his shell crossed the finish mark and he fell unconscious into the water, but was immediately rescued by the umpire's launch.

JOSEPH CHAMBERLAIN IS DEAD IN LONDON, AGED 78

American Wife Faithful Nurse to Famous British Statesman.

LONDON, July 3.—Joseph Chamberlain, the famous British statesman, died at his London residence at 10:15 o'clock last night after an illness of several years. He was seventy-eight years old and for nearly half a century was a conspicuous figure in British public life.

Although there was no reason for secrecy, news of Mr. Chamberlain's death was not made public until today. An official bulletin was issued in the forenoon which said:

"The Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain died peacefully at his London residence at 10:15 o'clock last night.

Mr. Chamberlain suffered a stroke of paralysis several years ago, and he spent his time between his London and Birmingham residence. Last Tuesday he was stricken with heart failure and never recovered from his attack. Physicians were in constant attendance up to the hour of his death.

All the members of the Chamberlain family were at the death bed.

News of Mr. Chamberlain's death was first telegraphed to life long friends in his politial constituency in Birmingham.

Although Mr. Chamberlain's death has been expected for a long time, the news of it caused widespread grief in the city where he had lived so long.

Hundreds of telegrams of condolence were received by the family from political friends during the day. The first came from the Birmingham district, but after the intelligence had been spread by cable, messages began arriving from all parts of the world.

In the extensive obituaries published in the evening papers the most felicitous references are made to Mrs. Chamberlain, to whose unceasing care and devotion is attributed the fact that the statesman survived so long after his general health became impaired.

Mr. Chamberlain had represented the parliamentary district of West Birmingham in the House of Commons since 1885, and it was only recently that he announced his retirement from public life. Although the aged statesman had been unable to attend to his parliamentary duties for some time he had become so endeared to his constituency through long and intimate association that the voters were willing to return him to Commons until death overtook him.

During the past year Mr. Chamberlain's mind failed him and at periods he was unable to recognize those about him.

CHAMBERLAIN ONE OF THE GREATEST OF ENGLISH STATESMEN

The passing of Joseph Chamberlain, former Colonial Secretary of England and one of the most brilliant figures of Europe, from political life and his rapidly failing health makes an epoch in European affairs of world-wide importance.

For several years Mr. Chamberlain has been fighting with his indomitable courage against the attacks of disease, combined with the weakness of advancing age.

This girl was Mary Endicott, who was married to Joseph Chamberlain in 1888, and who has been such a devoted wife, such a tremendous help to her husband's political life, and such a charming and tactful hostess that she won the unstinted praise o. even jealous and critical British rivals.

For the past several years Mrs. Chamberlain has given herself up utterly to nursing her husband, encouraging his fluctuating strength, soothing the restless spirit which chafed under inaction and abandoning every form of diversion and relaxation to succor the man she loved.

It required very, very much tact and no small degree of courage for Mrs. Chamberlain to steer her way through the cliques and jealousies of English county and political life, and to aid her husband's career, instead of hampering it.

But she never made mistakes. Her sweet dignity carried her through many difficult situations. Soon after she arrived in England she was invited to Court. But she refused firmly to be presented in the decollete gown that is the rule for women at court functions. Instead of being snubbed for her independence she was given the privilege of being presented in a high-necked dress. And so delighted was Victoria with the American bride that she readily overlooked the usually formidable question of attire. When Victoria's jubilee was celebrated in 1893, Mrs. Chamberlain was official hostess to the wives and families of colonial premises. So well did she discharge this difficult duty that the Queen bestowed upon her one of the gold commemoration medals reserved usually for members of Europe's royal families.

Joseph Chamberlain was born in Birmingham in 1836. His father was Joseph Chamberlain, a shoe manufacturer. The son went to Oxford and returned to Birmingham to enter politics and business. He was senior partner in the screw manufacturing firm of Chamberlain & Nattiefold, which made a great deal of money and enabled Chamberlain to establish a beautiful home for himself just outside Birmingham called "Highburg."

Chamberlain became the absolute political "boss" of Birmingham. He was Mayor three times. Then the city steadily returned him to Parliament from 1876 to 1885. He was president of the Board of Trade, president of the local government board, Secretary of State for the Colonies from 1895 to 1903, was chancellor of Birmingham University and lord rector of Glasgow University.

Bishop Lawrence Asks Salem Fund

Bishop Lawrence, a member of the Salem Fire Relief Committee, has sent an appeal to the parishes in the Episcopal diocese asking special contributions to the fund. The appeal, addressed to the pastors of the different churches, reads:

"Although some members of your congregation may have subscribed to the Salem Fire Relief Fund, I believe that everybody would like to express their sympathy in some offering, large or small. I suggest, therefore, that the parishes throughout the diocese make an offering for that object on some Sunday soon. Contributions should be sent to Gardiner M. Lane, No. 50 State street, Boston."

THOUSANDS "TAGGED" FOR SALEM

Boston was "tagged" today for Salem's sake. Thousands of Boston citizens at the great noon band concert on the Common bought tags from the 200 Boston school teachers who circulated among the throng there.

There were 30,000 tags prepared for the concert, but half an hour after the teachers began to distribute them the supply was running short.

The tags read: "Boston Common Concert for the Salem Relief Fund, Friday Noon, July 3, 1914. I HAVE SUBSCRIBED." A tag was tied to the buttonhole of every contributor.

Mrs. James M. Curley, wife of the Mayor, headed the tag-sellers. The teachers assembled in the old aldermanic chamber at 11 o'clock, met Mayor and Mrs. Curley, and marched from there to the Common.

BIGGEST BAND EVER IN CITY.

The largest band ever brought together in Boston took part in the concert. More than 300 members of the Boston Musicians' Union volunteered their services. John M. Flockton and Thomas M. Carter were in charge.

The Meistersingers from Keith's were there, as was Mrs. Helen Pratt Kelley, a vocalist.

The concert centred about the Parkman Memorial Bandstand. The program included classical and popular music.

There was no fixed price for the tags. A penny would buy as fine a tag as would a ten-dollar bill, and would win the same smile of thanks from the teachers selling them.

While this was in progress, plans were moving to completion for the Children's Pageant at the Arena, directed by Mrs. Lilla Vyles Wyman and Mrs. W. S. Butler. Besides the dances by hundreds of children, there were vaudeville acts from the local theatres.

Out in Norwood they are making good contributions to the fund. They sent $1,000 the other day, $1,500 another time, and have collected $935 of another $1,000, which will be sent Monday.

The Rev. Father Pelletier of Salem, who was then en route to Liverpool, cabled today from Liverpool: "Just arrived; will return at once on Lusitania." He had already cabled Mayor Hurley of Salem to draw on him for any amount.

HARASS IDLERS.

In Salem today, the militiamen were trying to drive to work the few men among the refugees who try to avoid working. Of 10,000 thrown out of employment by the fire, all but 500 have either found work elsewhere or joined the forces clearing up the Salem streets, where their industry shamed more accustomed workers. Men used to handling looms and making delicate fabrics turned their strength to the wheelbarrow and made good at it.

But in the refugee tents there are about 500 who show no disposition to work. They are living better than ever before in their lives, better food and equally comfortable surroundings. They have been assured the State will care for them, and they have taken this promise at its face value.

The militiamen today found two gangs playing cards. They ordered them to get out and hunt work. Later they found the gangs, one behind the bathhouse, continuing the card game, and the other in the nearby woods.

SUFFER FROM COLD.

Colonel Graves said today: "We ought to be taking down ten tents a day and forcing these few loafers to get to work. Instead of that we are becoming more crowded all the time."

The women and children meanwhile are suffering from the cold, and the Normal School and High School have been opened and cots installed in every available space.

Captain Blanchard of the Second Corps of Cadets found a number of men content to go on without working. He said:

"I wanted carpenters and called on some of the refugees. They wanted $4 a day apiece.

"I found the women padding all the way across the open field at all hours of the night to get milk prepared by the nurses for their babies. I made a rule that if a woman came over alone, a sanitary guard would be sent back with her and the husband would have to get up. But I had to rescind the rule, for the husbands wouldn't get up. Our night feeding fell off to almost nothing. They would have let the babies starve rather than get up."

A chief worry of the militia commanders now is the coming Fourth of July and Sunday. Last week's traffic regulations will be put in force again for the two days, but no new troops will be brought in.

Wilson in Message Urges $200,000 for Salem Fire Victims

WASHINGTON, July 3.—President Wilson today forwarded a special messsage to Congress urging speedy action on the appropriation of $200,000 for the relief of the Salem fire sufferers.

The House Committee on Appropriations held a special meeting today at which Congressmen Gardner and Murray told of the necessity for relief and a letter from Governor Walsh depicting conditions in the stricken city was read. The bill will be favorably reported. Senator Martine of New Jersey has agreed to have the appropriation called up in his committee without delay and there is every prospect that the money will be made available within a few days.

The text of the President's message follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

The Governor of Massachusetts has sent me the following telegram: "The Salem fund is increasing slowly. The expense of rehabilitation will be enormous as three thousand families are homeless and without work.

If the national government could appropriate $200,000 it would assist greatly. I am informed that the action of the national government at the time of the San Francisco disaster furnished a precedent. Can anything be done in the way of substantial contribution from the national government?"

In view of the great numbers of homeless and destitute in Salem I very earnestly urge the immediate appropriation by the Congress of $200,000 as requested by the Governor, to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of War.

NEXT SUNDAY'S AMERICAN

READY FOR AIR TRIP AT REVERE

According to the headlines, Lieutenant Porte, who is to fly the aeroplane when she tries the first transatlantic flight, is "losing his nerve." The long delays in building and preparing the America have worried him, and he is going to take a rest.

But Clifford Webster, the Haverhill man, who has made himself famous as the most fearless and skillful of aerial pilots, isn't losing his nerve when he thinks of his flights at Revere tomorrow. In fact he is looking forward to the event with the utmost pleasure. The AMERICAN has it on his own word.

The AMERICAN has invited all the good people in these parts to go down to Revere tomorrow afternoon and see the flights; and has promised that those who do go, and are wise enough and skilful enough to take advantage of an opportunity when they see it, will have an excellent chance to earn some money.

There will be awards totalling $250 to the winners of a new contest the AMERICAN has arranged—and which none can enter who do not go to Revere. But before we explain about the contest, read what Mr. Webster has to say about the flight he is to make. He writes:

WEBSTER EAGER TO FLY.

I am looking forward with lots of enthusiasm to my flights in the Burgess-Dunne seaplane at Revere Beach tomorrow. Of the many flights which I have made in Marblehead and various other parts of the country the most inspiring have been those in which I have realized in the sight of many up-turned faces that I was demonstrating to a great crowd the wonders and possibilities of man flight.

The apparent interest and pleasure of those below have always renewed my enthusiasm and determination to do my small part in advancing the time when the aeroplane shall become a common vehicle of locomotion among those who now stare in skeptical wonder.

Little can the "man in the street" imagine the feeling of elation which came to me a week ago as I gazed down upon my native city of Haverhill and saw the thousands who had gathered in the streets and upon the bridges to see the Burgess-Dunne soar and sweep above them. I cannot describe the warm feeling about the heart which came to me as I heard the mighty cheers which went up from my friends and fellow townsmen as I successfully landed upon the bosom of the beautiful Merrimac. And I realized that "a prophet is not without honor in his own land"—if he appear in a sufficiently dramatic manner.

It is, therefore, with a feeling of joyful anticipation that I look forward to giving pleasure to the gala throngs at Revere and in demonstrating to them the safety and stability of the Burgess-Dunne seaplane. For several months having been a resident of Boston, I shall feel that tomorrow I am flying before friends.

NOW UP TO THE PEOPLE.

The presence of the gaily dressed pleasure seekers at Boston's most popular shore resort will make this flight one of sharp contrast to that of Friday last when I floated above the ruins of the fire devastated Salem. As I gazed then upon the vastness of the destruction a wave of grief enveloped me and I only wished that I might do more to aid the stricken city.

So it will be with quite different feelings that I wheel and spiral for the edification and amusement of the holiday crowds at Revere.

May every one in the crowd be clever enough to get one of the cards that admit to the AMERICAN'S contest.

That is Mr. Webster's own idea of what the flight will mean. But, of course, he only sees it from his point of view. It may be delightful to wheel and spiral over the crowd; but it will be no less thrilling an experience to be one of that crowd, and see the great big bird of a thing that Webster calls a "seaplane," flitting and gliding overhead.

"FOOL PROOF" AIRSHIP.

The plane—it is a Burgess-Dunne—is what the experts call "fool proof." That is, it is like an unsinkable boat. It can fall, but you have to break a wing to do it. Webster is so expert that he can lock his hands behind his head and drive the plane.

But about that opportunity to make money. Mr. Webster refers to the cards he will drop—thousands of them—and every one a ticket of admission to the AMERICAN'S new Home City contest, perhaps the most unique competition ever arranged in New England.

There is still more or less mystery about this contest. You cannot enter it unless you go to Revere, and unless you get one of the cards Webster will drop. And even if you get one of the cards, you cannot enter the contest unless you follow out the directions on the card.

So go to Revere, see Webster, get one of the cards he drops, read what the card says, do what it tells you to do—and put yourself in the way of earning one of the awards.

CATHERINE FLORENCE BUSHARD, heroine of Tea Shop romance who will wed Leo J. Essman.

WED AFTER A TEA SHOP ROMANCE

After a stormy passage, Cupid's bark comes to port next Monday, when Catherine Florence Bushard and Leo J. Essman are to be married in the Church of St. Mary of the Annunciation, Cambridge.

Miss Bushard lives at No. 30 Essex street, Cambridge, and is the daughter of Mrs. Catherine Bushard. He is an expert accountant at the Hotel Commonwealth.

Last March Mr. Essman dropped into a teashop on Court street and ordered a cup of tea from an attractive young lady at the counter. It was observed that he returned frequently thereafter to order other cups, always from the same girl, Miss Bushard. May 21 their engagement was announced.

Then came a quarrel that brought a rumor the marriage was not to take place. Cupid was in hard straits—but Mr. Essman piloted his affairs to safety. Essman is thirty-six, Miss Bushard twenty. They are to be married by the Rev. Michael J. Doody. Carl Hendricks of New Haven is to be best man; Ella Bushard, bridesmaid. There is to be a nuptial mass. The bride and groom are to leave for New York for a honeymoon abroad. They will live at the Hotel Commonwealth.

AFTER THE WAR.

The end of the Civil War did not mean that the brave hearts of the Confederacy were at peace. Stormy times followed and the South and its heroes had much to contend with. Mrs. General George E. Pickett in "The War-Time Story of General Pickett," which she is writing for Cosmopolitan Magazine, tells, in the July number, of the years that followed Appomattox. MOTHER PRAYS FOR RETURN OF EVERETT GIRL

By SYBIL WARNE

Every mother in New England can appreciate the feelings of poor, distracted Mrs. Henry Marovitz of No. 88 Irving street, Everett, mother of the missing Jennie Marovitz. I talked to the mother. I found her fondling, turning over and over again, a piece of crochet work with the needle running through it, just as Jennie left it more than a week ago.

"It's just one week ago that Jennie left me," said the mother, as she lifted her eyes to tell the secret slowly breaking her heart. Then she would let her eyes fall once more upon the treasures of the table. "She never would stay away like this without letting me know. She was a home girl. She never was out late nights. She always told me where she went. I know that something has happened to her.

"Is there not any one who can find my daughter? I can't stand this. What have I done to suffer like this?

"Something is keeping her. This I know. But if Jennie could only see how much I have fretted over her she would not keep her mother in this misery."

Getting up once more to look through the window, the mother turned to me and asked: "Do you think anyone would kidnap my daughter? How can they do such a thing as that? I don't see why anyone would want to break a mother's heart like this. Jennie never had any intimate male friend."

Jennie Marovitz has been missing from her Everett home over a week today. She worked as a bookkeeper in her uncle's establishment in Chelsea. Her work there was not agreeable to her, but her mother told her not to give it up, though she often complained. Over a week ago, after eating her supper, she disappeared.

Thousands View the Bodies of Slain Archduke and Wife

VIENNA, July 3.—Mourning thousands passed today before the bodies of Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife as they lay in state in the chapel of Hoffburg. The caskets rested upon an elevated catafalque entirely covered with gold brocade with a swinging canopy. The little room was heavy with incense and candles burned dimly on the four sides of the dais.

At the foot of the catafalque were cushions bearing the archduke's crown and the archducal two-pointed hat, a plumed military hat, the archduke's sword and all his decorations. At the foot of the coffin of the Duchess reposed her orders, a pair of long, white gloves and her fan, in accordance with the Austrian custom.

Early in the afternoon the bodies were removed from the Hofburg and shipped to Amstetten in lower Austria, where they will be buried at midnight tonight upon the grounds of the late archduke's castle. The burial ceremonies in the dead of night upon the lonely acres surrounding the ancient castle will be an event of unusual impressiveness.

Exeter Relics Are Burned in $100,000 Blaze

EXETER, N. H., July 3.—Priceless portraits of the founder, instructors, eminent graduates and benefactors and numerous trophies and gifts of former classes were lost in a fire, early today, which destroyed the main building of Phillips Academy. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

The school is closed for the Summer and all of the officials were away. The building was beyond hope of saving when the firemen reached the scene, but they saved the gymnasium, physical laboratory and Abbott and Alumni Halls close by. Only the walls of the main academy building were left standing and the furnishings and decorations of the famous old structure are a total loss.

Among the portraits destroyed, besides that of John Phillips, the founder, were those of Daniel Webster, Edward Everett, Lewis Cass, Jared Sparks, George Bancroft and John A. Dix, the War Governor of New York. A bust of General Benjamin F. Butler was also lost.

VILLA DEMANDS AMMUNITION OF GEN. CARRANZA

By H. H. STANSBURY.

Staff Correspondent of the American.

SALTILLO, Mexico, July 1, by courier to Laredo, Texas, July 3.—Francisco Villa has demanded of General Carranza the supply of ammunition now held at Monterey and the 3,000,000 rounds landed at Tampico from the Sunshine. The nature of the demand has added greatly to the confusion which already threatens the Constitutionalist cause with disaster.

There is serious apprehension that Villa may bring part of his force back into the northwest, take such supplies as he needs and capture the port of Tampico for his own uses.

Carranza sent a special train to Monterey this morning for General Antonio Villareal, the new Secretary of War, and is holding a conference to decide what to do. Every effort is being made to guard the details of the new difficulties with Villa through the censorship. It is said that Carranza will ask Villa to send representatives to San Pedro, just this side of Torreon, to confer with a commission he will appoint to take up the question of ammunition and supplies.

Since the first break with Carranza, Villa has won every point in the controversy and has by force taken everything he needed for his campaign. His attitude toward the Constitutional chief is well illustrated by his seizure of all engines and rolling stock at Torreon.

General Eulalio Guiterrez has arrived here. He reported that Constitutionalist troops holds the suburbs of San Luis Potosi and that the Federal troops are bottled up in the city proper. The rebel troops there are the brigades of General Jesus Carranza, Augustin Castro, Jesus Guiterrez and Carrera Torres.

Constantino Llaca, a former member of Congress, has started a revolt against the government at Gadereyta, in the province of Queretaro. Federal troops have been dispatched to put down the rising.

Grant, Cleared of Charge of Bigamy, Is Again Arrested

Daniel Webster Grant, twenty-five years old and connected with prominent families of Lynn, was discharged on a complaint of bigamy by Judge O'Brien in Lynn District Court today, but was immediately rearrested on a serious charge preferred on behalf of Annie M. Porter of Saugus.

Grant was divorced three weeks ago by Lena Sherburne Grant for neglect. He was alleged to have married Annie M. Porter at Portland, in March, 1912, while he was still the husband of Lena Sherburne Grant. The bigamy charge was based on the reported Portland ceremony. Grant denied having married Miss Porter, although he admitted that he was in that city for a week when the girl was there. Her parents declared she was lured to Portland by Grant under false promise of marriage.

Lynn Lawyer Gives Bride Gift of His 'Vast Love' for $1

A pre-nuptial gift of his "vast love and affection" in consideration of $1, was made by Charles W. Lovett, a Lynn lawyer, to his bride, who was Miss Genevieve E. Lockerbie of No. 142 Hancock street, Cambridge. As a wedding present to his bride he gave land and buildings located on Oak Hill avenue, Cliftondale.

When Mr. Lovett transferred his "vast love and affection" in legal form, he put love on the market for the first time in that original way. The transfer, however, proves that the days of chivalry are not passed, as he sets the value of his love and affection at one dollar, and at the same time he gives to his bride a lot of land and a house which is one of the most magnificent in Cliftondale.

POLICE NOW CERTAIN WOMAN WAS SLAYER OF DOCTOR'S PATIENT

to reach a definite conclusion as to whether the murderer sought the life of Dr. Carman or Mrs. Bailey.

Dr. Carman posed the figure in his office. He assumed the position that he occupied when the shot was fired. Chief Lamb took the role of Mrs. Bailey, District Attorney Smith went to the outside of the window to fill the assassin's part, and Sheriff Pettit supervised the stage setting.

From the post of the murderer, District Attorney Smith insisted that it was impossible to see Dr. Carman at all and that no part of his body was either in line or sight of the line of fire.

CLAIM WOMAN WAS CULPRIT.

After this demonstration the officials declined to accept any theory except that which held that a woman fired the shot and fired it at the woman victim of the mysterious crime.

"I am satisfied," said Sheriff Pettit, "that a woman did this shooting."

"Why don't you make an arrest then?" he was asked.

"We haven't enough evidence upon which to arrest this woman," replied Pettit. "If we did arrest her she could get a writ of habeas corpus and get free at once."

District Attorney Smith ordered a closer watch upon the Carman house. He directed that any person who left the house should be followed, and in the event that the person sought to cross the county line an arrest be made at once, under the law permitting the detention of material witnesses.

Mrs. Carman was barred from the inquest today, although it had been expected she would be an important witness. District Attorney Smith refused to allow her to testify, saying he was going to put all the facts in the case up to the Nassau County Grand Jury next week. When George M. Levy, counsel for Mrs. Carman, was told that the district attorney had refused to allow his client to appear as a witness at the inquest, he said:

"This undoubtedly means that Mrs. Carman is suspected."

CALL FIFTEEN WITNESSES.

Fifteen witnesses, including members of Mrs. Bailey's family, were summoned to testify at the inquest. Dr. Carman is reported to have told the district attorney that he had his hand upon Mrs. Bailey's shoulder when the shot was fired. This fact had not hitherto been known.

Mrs. Carman was in no wise disconcerted by the action of the district attorney.

"So many conflicting reports have arisen that I would like to testify and tell all I know," she said. "I am sorry if Mr. Smith has decided to keep me from the witness chair. I realize that I am under suspicion, but I believe that my story would vindicate me."

Mrs. Carman today declared her innocence of any share of guilt for the crime.

"I do not know who fired the shot that killed Mrs. Bailey," she asserted. "I have no theory as to the murder or whether the bullet was intended for my husband or Mrs. Bailey.

"The case is just as much a mystery to me as it is to the general public. Why should I make a formal denial of guilt? That would only strengthen the insinuations—they do not dare to make actual charges. I know nothing whatever of this terrible affair. I did not even know Mrs. Bailey."

HEARD SHOT FIRED.

"When I arrived home on Monday evening," she said, "I had a bad headache and was very tired, so I did not stop to eat dinner but went upstairs and went to bed at once.

"After a while I heard the crash of shivering glass and a pistol shot and the excitement that followed. I jumped up and put on a dressing gown and ran downstairs, but my sister had already gotten down before me, and she made me go back upstairs. She did not let me enter the doctor's office at all, and so I did not see Mrs. Bailey.

"As for having had the dictagraph put in my husband's office, I will admit that I was jealous of him and curious to know what he did. He was always laughing and joking with me about his conquests among the women, and that one was his 'girl.' And whenever we went out other people were always guying him and telling what a devil of a fellow he was among the women. And it made me want to know how much truth there was in it.

BUYS A DICTOGRAPH.

"So one day in the early part of May, when I was in New York, I was passing a place where there were electrical devices for sale in the window and I went in and asked if they had dictagraphs. They sent me to another place.

"I went to the place, and in the conversation that I had with the man in charge I asked him if I bought one could I rely on its being kept secret, and he assured me that no one could ever possibly know about it, as they regarded all their transactions with their customers as confidential.

"With that understanding I bought it. I consider that the company has treated me very badly in breaking faith with me and making the matter public. Of course, I am sorry enough now that I did install the dictagraph, but nobody could foresee this sad accident that has happened in our house. As for the rest, everything that I have heard over it, and I have listened to my husband's conversations with his patients, has been perfectly proper and of a nature to allay all of my suspicions and renew my confidence in him. In a word, I wanted to know the real truth of my husband's relations to his patients, what he said to them and they to him, behind closed doors, and I have found out through the dictagraph.

"On Monday night I had a headache as I said and I was not listening and so I heard none of the conversation that passed between my husband and Mrs. Bailey. All that I know was the sound of the shot and the horror-stricken cries of my husband and the others in the house."

Roosevelt 'Rests' on Back of a Horse

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 3.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt took the "rest cure" on horseback today, going for a long ride with his daughter, Mrs. Richard Derby, Jr., who is giving a week-end party at Sagamore Hill for some friends. At the end of the ride the colonel said he "felt bully." It is reported that independent Democrats are urging the gubernatorial candidacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt, a cousin of the colonel and assistant Secretary of the Navy. There is nothing to indicate, however, that the colonel will back him.

'Safety First' Slogan Prevents Accidents

The Elevated Railroad, in a statement today, declared that during the second day of the Safety First campaign there was no serious accident on the system. Today the Elevated placed on all its cars 50,000 Safety First stickers on which were the words "Safety First—Watch Your Steps—Avoid Accidents."

Jerome Makes Plea for Life of Gifford

ALBANY, N. Y., July 3.—In the presence of a vast throng over which a mantle of silence was flung because of the dramatic nature of the occasion, Attorney William Travers Jerome today fought for the life and liberty of his client, Malcolm Gifford, Jr., on trial for the murder of Frank Clute, a chauffeur, in 1913. "Crime is not committed without a motive," he exclaimed, "unless it is committed by a degenerate.

"I ask you to consider the youth and character of the defendant, he is only a lad. Whoever committed that crime, committted it with no other purpose than murder for he had murder in his heart."

He combatted each damaging statement of witnesses for the prosecution and reiterated the early life and environments of young Gifford which he declared had been unquestionably good. He said that the characters of those who had testified for Gifford was such as to forbid the thought of perjury on their part.

Expect Mahoney to Get Westfield Plum

FATHER OFFERS REWARD FOR ELOPING GIRL

his acquaintances that the girl "is just crazy about me."

"I am offering a reward of $100 for information leading to the whereabouts of my little girl," said Hallian today. "If she is alive I want her to come back home and I will pay that reward to anyone who can tell us where she is so that we can get her."

Since Elsman and the girl left Hull no word has been received from them. Members of the Hallian family today began to fear something may have happened to the pair, although friends of Elsman declare they are probably waiting to be married before letting the family know where they are.

An all-night search in Portland, Me., failed to reveal any trace of either Elsman or the girl and the hunt was renewed today. They are reported to have been seen leaving a train in that city, but were not intercepted by the police, as up to that time no official notification had been received from the Hull authorities.

Daniel Brassit, a member of the firm of the Taxi Letting Company of No. 293 Northampton street, South End, furnished the clew which revealed the course taken by the elopers. Brassit says he drove them in a taxi-cab from the Castle Square Hotel to the Malden station in the hope of catching the Portland express. Arriving at the station the girl and her sweetheart were told the express did not stop there, and then followed a wild automobile ride to South Lawrence, where Brassit succeeded in heading off the train and assisted Fern Hallian and Elsman aboard.

A traveling man on the train recognized the pair and notified Hallian. The Portland police were communicated with, but by that time the fugitives had left the train. They are believed to be making for Montreal, where Elsman has a brother and two sisters living. This is Brassit's story:

TELLS OF ELOPEMENT.

It was shortly after 11 o'clock in the morning that I received a call to go with my large touring car to the Castle Square Hotel. There I was met by Louis Elsman. He conducted me to where the girl was waiting, near the woman's entrance.

"Why, hello, Elsman, what is this, a little ride to the country?" I asked in a joking way. I had recognized him as a former Boston taxi driver whom I knew casually.

"Oh, we are just going for a quick trip to Portland," said Elsman.

Then Elsman and the young woman, who impresed me greatly with her good looks, confident that they intended to "catch" the Portland express at Malden. "We want to avoid the crowd at the North Station," was al the explanation that Elsman gave me.

Before we started on the trip Elsman carefully raised all the curtains. Then he made the young woman wait for a moment. He dashed across Castle Square to a newsstand and purchased a bundle of Boston papers.

FRIEND SAYS GUNMAN DID NOT INTEND TO KILL

"Diamond [illegible] [illegible] did not intend to shoot [illegible] [illegible] afternoon in the [illegible] when he killed Inspector [illegible] Norton in an attempt [illegible]. This is the statement of [illegible] a friend of the man [illegible] with him yesterday in the [illegible] street jail, where Robinson [illegible] trial.

Parish is a [illegible] of the "101 Ranch" [illegible] at the Hotel Lenox [illegible]. He said today:

"Robinson [illegible] candy and peanuts with [illegible]. We never knew anything [illegible] against him.

"I saw him yesterday. I talked with him for about [illegible] minutes. He is as sorry as a man can be for Inspector Norton's [illegible].

"My only [illegible] in seeing him was to see that he is treated justly. Whether he actually did shoot Norton or not, I do not know; but I do know he did not intend to shoot Norton or anyone else."

Parish has visited the scene of the shooting, and has called on attorneys in Robinson's behalf.

The man first made his appearance in Revere in search of Attorney Alexander S. Neal, who, he understood, was to defend Robinson. Later the man called on Neal at No. 6 Beacon street, Boston, and made inquiries concerning the amount of money it would cost to defend Robinson.

"I told him," said Neal, "that I would handle the case if a certain amount of cash was put up.

"He told me there was any quantity of money back of Robinson. He said he had known the prisoner for fifteen years, and that Robinson's friends are anxious to help him."

Witness to Show Two Killed Ballou

STAMFORD, Ct., July 3.—States Attorney Cummings announced today that he would tolerate no further delay of the inquest into the death of Waldo R. Ballou, the Republican politician, who was killed after making a visit to Mrs. Helen M. Angle in the Rippowam Building. Judge N. C. Dowes, when informed of the states attorney's announcement, declared that Mrs. Angle would not be permitted to testify at the inquest today.

Detectives who went to New York to question an acquaintance of Mrs. Angle returned today with a man whose identity they would not divulge. It was reported that this man would give evidence showing that Ballou was the victim of violence at the hands of two persons.

REMARKABLE LIFE ROMANCE OF 'CHIP' ROBINSON, GUNMAN

CHAPTER V.

"Now, by two-headed Janus,
Nature hath framed strange fellows in her time."
(A Midsummer Night's Dream.)

Paradoxical as the expression may seem, for all his reputed roughness in his operations, Lawrence Robinson was extremely "smooth" in appearance.

His life ran to extremes. The country lad had developed into a bold and ready fellow, one who knew how to wear good clothes and how to mingle among people of respectability.

Events of the past month in Boston have shown that Robinson was presentable in looks. A detective in Boston, speaking of this, made this remark:

"You've got to hand it to that chap for looks. He would pass, not as a conservative business man, but as a high-class follower of sports. He dresses not only expensively but well, not exceeding good taste in his suits, shirts, ties and so on. And he is mighty particular about his garments. His coat has to fit to a nicety."

There was another distinct side to Robinson's makeup, too—his ability to make friends among girls and women. The man showed only his most amiable side toward feminine acquaintances in his travels around the country.

"JOLLIED" GIRLS

The same persuasive and winning manner which had enabled him to win the trusting love of Dora Hard of Washington Courthouse carried Robinson successfully into the good graces of many other women and girls. Robinson liked to make a pleasant impression upon them. If he bought a newspaper of a comely girl at a newsstand he would make some small talk about the weather or the latest newspaper sensation or anything which furnished a good conversational gambit.

In talking with thoughtless girls, Robinson was gay and pleasing, indulging in repartee or "jollying," as the expression goes, with the best of them. If he was talking with women of more mature tastes, Robinson could be dignified and deferential.

His appearance was a pretty good introduction for him in the casual friendships he sought. His clothes, ready talk and general air of prosperity combined to furnish him a surface recommendation. Robinson's ease of manner and skillful address usually carried him along after he was under way.

Beyond question, there are many women and girls in the United States today who, if they have read the papers of late, are now amazed to learn that the man they deemed a man of standing and property is now held by the police on a capital charge, with the police alleging a very "spotted" record against him.

STRING OF ALIASES.

In the big cities Robinson enjoyed himself immensely, providing he was in plenty of funds, which he usually was. He frequented the better class of restaurants and cafes. He liked music and could put in a congenial evening at a concert or musical play. He was fond of auto riding, too, and spent considerable money hiring taxicabs or touring cars for brisk rides.

If located in a city for any length of time, Robinson usually selected some quiet but comfortable hotel at which to stop. And he used, so the police declare, different names for different occasions. In one way and another Robinson acquired a string of names, or aliases, which were gradually collected by the police in one part of the country or another when the course of events set them to picking up his varied career.

In the life that Robinson was following a soubriquet is almost indispensable. It marks one as an accepted member of the craft. Lawrence Robinson became known first as "Chip" or "Chippy" and later as "Diamond Chip" Robinson.

The "Chip" or "Chippy" was due to his neat appearance. The "Diamond" part of his name grew out of a fondness he acquired for these gems.

In later years, as Robinson became more prosperous, he could produce from one to a half dozen diamonds of considerable value, spoils of his unlawful operations, directly or indirectly.

TRUSTED NO ONE.

Robinson learned to love the sparkling stones, keeping those of finest cut and color and disposing of inferior ones. He gained a discriminating taste in precious stones and could give quite an expert opinion on the value of a stone.

Like most men of the underworld, Robinson trusted no one. He carried his money and his diamonds on his person. For the diamonds he had secret pockets, chamois-lined, made in his suits. Other and larger pockets were put in to hold bank bills, laid flat so as to prevent bulging. What money Robinson wished to have handy, for daily expenses, he kept in any ordinary pocket.

When he had achieved any unusually profitable stroke of work (?) Robinson would be a walking bank, with his wealth represented by cash or diamonds.

He usually had diamonds to sell and, partly from natural liking for the stage and partly as a business proposition, he cultivated theatrical acquaintances, especially feminine ones. He inclined toward burlesque actresses, but a good many of the keen-witted women and girls of the burlesque stage looked through Robinson's gloss of clothes, chatter and suavity and were wary in their dealings with him.

If unfortunate Dora Hard had been sharpened by theatrical life instead of being an unsophisticated girl, she would have hesitated long before entrusting her life happiness to Lawrence Robinson. But the very girl whose life was to be most bound up with that of Robinson was least equipped, among the many he knew, to appreciate him rightly at first glance.

Through his travels about the country Robinson kept in casual touch with his home, as he calles it, in Cincinnati, where the patient wife remained most of the time.

Occasionally Mrs. Robinson closed the flat and went to her girlhood home in Washington Courthouse. There she visited her parents, trying to make them see her husband in the same favorable light that she did.

Mrs. Robinson's health was a source of much concern to her father and mother and they naturally blamed Robinson for leaving her alone so much. Undoubtedly they took scant stock in the stories that Robinson told his wife of being obliged to travel continually. But Mrs. Robinson, loyal to the depths of her loving nature, would explain innocently that her husband's pressing business with the circus made it impossible for him to be home with her much.

It was not many years, however, before Mrs. Robinson's wifely trust and love were to be put to a terrible test.

"Wild Women" Burn Mansion in Ireland

BELFAST, July 3.—Resuming their campaign of arson in Ireland, militant suffragettes today burned the famous Tallymenoch mansion near Holywood, causing a loss of $100,000. Numerous art treasures, whose value cannot be estimated were also destroyed. Tallymenoch mansion was the home of the late Sir Daniel Dixon, who had gathered several noted collections. Scattered about the ruins of the mansion after the fire was found a quantity of suffragette literature.

MIXER WILL ADD TO BOYLSTON STREET LITTER

Merchants complaining of chaotic conditions along the line of subway construction on Boylston street for months past today learned that a huge concrete mixer was to be added to the street-stored equipment of the Nawn Company there in the immediate future.

Assurances previously had been given these business men that Boylston street would be cleared of its subway-construction litter on July 1 at the latest. It now seems that at least six weeks more of mining-camp conditions are to be wished upon them. Whether or not the Nawn Company will finish its subway contract in time to permit the re-paving of Boylston street before September 15, today is problematical.

JOKER IN CONTRACT.

The Transit Commission now has authorized the Nawns to instal the big concrete mixer. This is notwithstanding the fact that all avoidable interference with business is supposed to be prohibited in the contract under which the Boylston street subway is being built.

The insertion of the word "practicable" in the Nawn contract, however, it was held at the Transit Commission's office, leaves the Boylston street merchants without any means of refress in the matter at present.

This point was brought out in a thorough examination of the provisions contained in the Nawn contract, supposed to safeguard the interest of the Boylston street merchants, which read as follows:

> The contractor shall make the interference with business and the discomfort to occupants of buildings directly or indirectly affected by his operations, either by change of temperature, noise, loss of light, etc., AS SMALL AS PRACTICABLE. He shall, so far as practicable, manage his operations so that no tenant shall have cause to complain of getting an undue share of the annoyance which may arise from the work.
> The contractor shall so conduct his operations as to LEAVE AT ALL TIMES A SUFFICIENT AND SAFE ROAD TO permit fire engines and apparatus and other teams and wagons of equal size to pass through all streets and ways. The work must be so managed as to reduce the interference with sidewalk and street traffic to the lowest practicable degree.

MERCHANTS HELPLESS.

Harry P. Nawn, president of the company, now contends that so far as practicable, he has complied with these restrictive provisions of his subway contract.

The Transit Commission officials, in addition, up to the present time hold that this view of the situation is correct, under the subway conditions obtaining.

And the Boylston stree business men seem to be helpless in the whole affair.

Their only consolation lies in the obvious fact that even the Nawn Company cannot find it "practicable" to maintain mining-camp conditions along Boylston street forever.

'People of Boston Dance Beautifully,' Says Mrs. Wyman

Mrs. Lilla Viles Wyman, the Boston dancing teacher, answering the charge of Dr. F. C. Richardson, Boston University professor, that dancing and the tango are large factors in crime, declared today:

"The country is dance mad at present. The craze for the dance has penetrated to every corner not only of the United States, but of the world. If the doctor's accusations were true the whole world would be in a most pitiable state. The people of Boston are, save for a very few exceptions, dancing beautifully now."

Merchants Object to Sidewalk Solicitors

Boston's retail merchants at a big meeting at the Chamber of Commerce took steps to seek legislation prohibiting "unfair competition" through sidewalk solicitors. These solicitors approach men and women who are looking into the shop windows, promise them "much lower prices," take them to a store on some side street and sell them inferior goods. Complaints to Commissioner O'Meara have, it is said, brought out the fact that there is no law to deal with the evil.

SALT RHEUM ITCHED AND BURNED

On Hands and Feet. Skin Red and Inflamed. Could Not Put Hands in Water. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed.

Box 146, Bark St., Swansea, Mass.—"One morning I got up and my hand was all little pimples and itching. Then it would crack. The trouble also came on my feet. I was told it was salt rheum. The skin on my hands and feet was red and inflamed. When the pimples itched I would scratch and water came out of them. I could not put my hands in water for when I did they would burn. When I took my shoes off, my feet would itch and burn. I had a bad case.

"I tried four treatments but they did not make me any better. Last summer I saw in the paper about Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I sent for a sample. Before I had used all the sample my hands and feet were getting better, so my husband bought some Cuticura Soap and Ointment. It took two months before my hands and feet were all healed." (Signed) Mrs. Della Martin, Mar. 10, 1914.

T. R. Assails Wilson, Bryan and Du Bois on Colombia Treaty

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 3.—"If the Wilson administration puts through the treaty with Colombia, providing for the payment of $25,000,000, it will forfeit the right to the respect of the people of the United States," declared Colonel Roosevelt in a statement.

Colonel Roosevelt's statement followed that of James T. Dubois, former minister to Colombia, who assailed the acts of the Roosevelt administration in connection with the Panama revolution.

"I have nothing to say about Mr. Dubois; he was merely an instrument. Mr. Wilson is responsible for the payment of the blackmail, to Colombia. Whether he did it on his own initiative or at the instigation of Mr. Bryan is unimportant."

BOSTON CREWS WILL RACE IN WORLD TROPHY

almost to even terms. The Americans spurted, too, and led by just the tip of the shell at the finish.

Harvard won the race by three-quarters of a length in one of the most remarkable races ever rowed over the classic Challenge course. Both crews bent sturdily to their oars and it was neck and neck almost to the stretch.

TIME WAS 7 MINUTES.

Then with a mighty effort the members of the Harvard crew spurted, the muscles of the straining oarsmen sending the shell forward with a dash. The Canadians had spent their energy and could not overcome the lead. Throughout the contest the rain beat down fiercely and at times the wind drove into the faces of the oarsmen making it difficult for them to see.

But these difficulties only added to the glory of the victory. As the oarsmen stepped from their shell with the water streaming from their rowing trunks Americans dashed forward and amidst a tangle of umbrellas and mackintoshes all the members of the Harvard crew were picked up and triumphantly carried about. Harvard's time was seven minutes flat.

GRAND CHALLENGE CUP FIRST RACED FOR IN 1839

The Henley Grand Challenge Cup, the world's greatest rowing prize, now won by America for the first time, was first raced for in 1839 at the initial royal regatta.

Since that time each year has seen the crack eights of the world battling for the prize. The Challenge Cup for eights and the Diamond Sculls for singles are the two big water trophies of the sport world.

Amateur rowing rules are based on the Henley rules. The English regatta is the standard.

It was in 1895 that the American invasion of the Henley started, a Cornell crew going across the pond and getting into the finals, but losing.

The next year Yale tried to bring back the cup and the following season Penn, but the English oarsmen proved too fast.

Since that time intermittent attempts have been made to win the prize for the United States, but until today never successfully.

In the early days of the regatta the college men had things all their own way, up to 1856, when the Chester crew and the London Rowing Club eights began to loom up big.

Leander, always made up of Cambridge and Oxford crew men, has held the cup by far the greatest number of times, and was a favorite for this year's regatta. They were beaten in the trials by Harvard.

In recent year the Belgian crew scored three wins, only to be beaten by Leander at the Olympic regatta, and last season Australia won the "Grand," but lost to Leander at the Olympic at Stockholm.

Both the Ottawa and Argonaut Rowing Clubs of Canada have tried for the "Grand," the latter several times without success.

Kilbane Has Close Call in 10-Round Battle with Mars

CINCINNATI, July 3.—Johnny Kilbane shaded Mars in a ten-round bout at the Queen City A. C. at Redland Field. They had started roughing things after three rounds, with Kilbane having the best in infighting.

The fight was a rattling good mill and every one seemed to think that Mars had a chance to lick the champion. Mars said after the fight that he would like to fight Kilbane in a twenty-round bout and [illegible] could worry him. There were no knockdowns.

N. Y. Y. C. Regatta Held Up by Calm

NEW YORK, July 3.—Fourteen yachts, ranging in size from the schoonerettes and New York Yacht Club 30s to the Class F schooners and N. Y. Y. C. 50s, were ready for the New York Yacht Club's races for the Glen Cove cups on Long Island Sound, but there was no race.

As there was no evidence of a breeze at the time scheduled to start the races the committee on board the tug Julia C. Moran decided to postpone the events indefinitely, so three whistles were blown and the event was declared off.

Segar Is Put Out at Cambridge Bout

In a substitute bout Phinney Boyle of Lowell defeated Young Segar of New York in seven rounds at the University A. C., Cambridge. Segar substituted for K. O. Eggers.

Bob Nick won from Young Anderson in two rounds. Frankie O'Connor won from Johnny Morley in four rounds. Teddy Murphy and Frankie Barrett boxed a ten-round draw.

Former Brave Joins the Cleveland Naps

CLEVELAND, O., July 3.—Jay Kirke, first baseman of the Cleveland American Association team and formerly of the Boston Nationals, has joined the Cleveland American League team.

Hagerman Loses Suit for Salary

Casey Hagerman's dealings with the Boston Red Sox has ceased. Casey has not been a member of the Sox for two years, but through the Baseball Players' Fraternity he sued the Boston club for $103.23 for salary he claims was due him. Judge Donnelly of the New York Supreme Court decided that the pitcher had no just claim against the club.

Hagerman was released by Boston to the Jersey City club two years ago, which in turn sent him to Denver of the Western League, where his salary was cut in two. He refused to report and tried to hold Boston for his salary. He is now pitching for the St. Louis Cardinals.

O'Neill to Manage Hartford Ball Club

Sidelights on Sports

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

A WAVE of disorder seems to be sweeping over the ball fields of the country. These are the days of turbulence on baseball diamonds—not alone in the parks of organized baseball, but in the ranks of the Federal League as well.

IT was to be expected that with the class of men that jumped to the Feds there would be considerable trouble between players and also between players and umpires in that organization.

From the personnel of the clubs it was mainfest even before the season started that several of the players and managers would try to ride roughshod over the Federal League circuit. It was thought that the organization would prove to be a sort of happy-go-lucky combination with the players doing about as they pleased on the diamond.

EARLY predictions turned out to be true. President Gilmore has been kept busy admonishing umpires, discharging umpires, fining umpires, fining players and suspending players. Things are now running more smoothly in the Federal organization, however. At least, there have been few disturbances in the past few days.

It is possible that the Fed players have become convinced that if they kick over the traces and refuse to submit to fines and suspensions, as one or two of them tried to do earlier in the year, there is no place to go. They cannot jump back into Organized Baseball. The cases of Pitchers Smith and Allen, of the Baltimore Feds, who applied for reinstatement to the Montreal Club, are proof of this.

BUT turbulence is rampant in the big leagues. Day after day reports come over the wire of disturbances on the ball field. The players are going to greater lengths in their efforts to show their defiance of the authority of the umpires.

Doubtless they have the idea that the discipline of the major leagues will be relaxed for fear that players, who are punished, will jump to the Feds.

UNLESS the players are to get the upper hand and make the baseball situation even worse, Presidents Johnson and Tener would do well to take their big sticks in hand and deal out a few well-directed blows. For if the players get the upper hand of the umpires it will be a sorry day for the National game.

* * *

PRESIDENT JOHNSON has already indefinitely suspended Manager Griffith, Schaefer and Gandil of the Washington club. The former pair drew their punishment for their part in the forfeiting of the game of June 24, and the first baseman was punished when Umpire Chill reported that the player had thrown a baseball at him on the following day.

* * *

TO prove that he will stand by his umpires, President Johnson sent Chill and Sheridan right back to Washington to officiate in that city. The American League president has adopted such tactics before. If Chill stands the test he will, no doubt, have easier sailing with the Senators from this time on.

* * *

OUR Uncle Bill Carrigan was banished by Silk O'Loughlin the other day for protesting on balls and strikes. This sort of thing, however, is a part of the game and will continue spasmodically as long as baseball is played.

* * *

IN the National League the most recent trouble was when Umpire Klem banished ten Pittsburg players from the bench. Manager Clark was included in the bunch. Klem warned them to cease coaching, but they persisted and the umpire canned them all. Clark jumped up to register a kick and Klem put him off the field, too.

IN Chicago the day before Manager Herzog and Hoblitzel, of Cincinnati, and Good, of Chicago, were ordered off the field by Umpire Egan. [illegible] and Moran and Sweeney nearly had a fist fight because "Policy Bill" was spiked on the hand by Moran.

On the same day at the Polo Grounds there was considerable wrangling and Tesreau, Snodgrass and Donlin were ordered to the clubhouse.

THE Phillies and Braves are well-behaved teams on the field as a general thing. Gowdy was put out of Wednesday's game for saying things to Umpire Rigler when he was called out on a third strike that Hank was trying to get away from. However, like the banishment of Carrigan, this sort of thing will happen occasionally.

NIEHOFF, of the Cincinnati team, gives as his reason for jumping to the Feds that Manager Herzog gave him a call-down for reporting late for a double-header in Cincinnati a week ago.

So it seems that a manager cannot say anything to a player these days for fear the player will jump.

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made that the Pittsburgh Feds will follow the lead of the Brooklyn Feds in reducing the price of admission to fifty and twenty-five cents, and it now seems likely that this step will be taken in all the financially unsuccessful cities of the Federal League Circuit.

Enzmann Signs with Dodgers for 3 Years

BROOKLYN, July 3.—Johnny Enzmann, the Brooklyn boy who pitched such good ball for the Newark Indians during the past two seasons, will join the Brooklyn Nationals at Cincinnati next Wednesday. Johnny affixed his signature to a Dodger contract calling for the remainder of the season, also for the seasons of 1915 and 1916.

Enzmann is a right-hander, and has a big assortment of benders, speed and control. His departure from Newark was because of the poor attendance, which necessitated the raising of money to meet running expenses.

Matty to Bare His Life Before Camera

NEW YORK, July 3.—And now the movies have snared Matty. The star pitcher of the Giants will add to his versatilities by becoming a moving picture actor. He has just signed a contract with a film concern to take part in a series of pictures which will depict his career on the diamond and show how he does it in the box. A series of baseball stories—thrilling, says the press agent—are being written by the film people with Matty in the leading part. Meanwhile he will continue to play a leading part for the Giants.

New Stars for I. A. C.

CHICAGO, July 3.—The Illinois Athletic Club has added to its list of athletes Bond of Michigan, who won the 100-yard dash in the intercollegiate meet at Cambridge last May; Kohler, the michigan weight man, and Brodt, the Cornell hurdler.

For relief in Hay Fever, Old Rum is strongly endorsed by those who have used it.

RITCHIE-WELSH ARE EVEN UP, SAYS EXPERT

By GEORGE CONSIDINE.

PORTHCAWL, South Wales, July 3.—Oh, to be a boy in Porthcawl. Oh, to have a pen that could picture Porthcawl's pet and pride—Freddie Welsh.

I have seen many unexpected sights in my visits to Chinese waters in the period covering over twenty-five years, but never as many unexpected sights as I saw, and never with a youth of the village playing such an important part.

From the moment Stanley Welsh, Freddie's brother, started me on the twenty-seven-mile cross-country spin from Cardiff to Porthcawl in Freddie's car until an hour later when we stopped at a little moving-picture theatre in the tiny Welsh hamlet we passed probably 5,000 children ranging from ten to seventeen years scattered through half a dozen villages; and every one of them shouted childish greetings to Stanley, who looks enough like Freddie to be a twin.

Welsh is now in great shape. He boxed twelve rounds with five partners, beginning with young Greenstock, who recently fought so well in Philadelphia.

One after another the boys smashed over straight right wallops such as have made Ritchie champion, but there was nothing doing.

Welsh is a great defensive fighter, and he slipped in and stayed there when the other fellow wanted to fight out and he stayed out when his partner tried to keep in.

Ritchie's big chance will lie in his straight right, but he will have to pull the trigger quickly to get Welsh.

Willie will have to hustle to beat Welsh, who is favorite in the betting at odds of 5 to 4. But there is plenty of aggressiveness and his wallop ought to offset Welsh's speed and defensive ability.

Welsh claims to be only twenty-seven years, but fighters are like grand opera singers, taking a line from Packey McFarland. It won't surprise me a little bit to hear the referee call the bout a draw.

Lipton Has Eye Out for Harmsworth Cup

CHICAGO, July 3.—In congratulating James A. Pugh on the christening of Disturber IV., which will compete for the Harmsworth motor boat trophy at Cowes next month, Sir Thomas Lipton cabled Pugh today as follows:

"I think the Harmsworth mug and the America mug would both be benefited by trips across the ocean."

Disturber IV. will be given speed trials here every day next week.

Mace of Yale to Train Tennis Team

NEW HAVEN, Ct., July 3.—Walter Mace, the baseball and football trainer at Yale, received notice of his appointment as trainer of the American tennis players who will compete in the Davis Cup matches.

Mace has had great experience in keeping athletes in form. There is little question but that all the Americans will go through their hard battling in excellent shape with Mace in charge of them. He has been John Mack's assistant in training the football players for ten years, and has had charge of the baseball team for six seasons.

MANY BIG TRACK MEETS LISTED FOR HOLIDAY

By FRED HOEY.

An attractive list of holiday sporting events is carded for tomorrow. The track field furnishes the usual number of meets while the swimming and rowing provide a classy competition in these sports.

City track and field sports are scheduled throughout New England. Locally most interest centres in the City of Boston games on the Common at 10 o'clock a. m. and the big 12-mile race at the Division 73 A. O. H. games at Locust street in the afternoon.

The city of Somerville officials have arranged an open meet. The big meet outside this State is listed at Providence and many of the local athletes will compete there. Colonel George B. Billings, who is in charge of the city of Boston games on the Common, reports a very attractive entry list of entries.

In addition to the 12-mile race at the Hibernian games in the afternoon the committee has arranged Gaelic sports, including that strenuous pastime called hurling. The Young Irelands of Cambridge and the Redmonds of Boston, both undefeated for the past two seasons, will meet in a match of championship favor. Kerry and Cork teams will come together in a Gaelic football match for the championship of New England.

Jim Fox, chairman of the committee, has arranged a fine list of events for the New England A. A. U. rowing regatta at the Charles River Basin tomorrow afternoon. Canoe races will be a feature of the program.

Swimming will also be a feature of the holiday sport program. The Brookline Gymnasium A. A. will hold a competition in its tank, and many promising swimmers and divers will probably be uncovered. The South Boston Swimming Club has scheduled its usual Fourth of July open meet.

Mace Made Trainer of Tennis Cup Men

RED SOX ON THE ROAD TO ANOTHER PENNANT

By NICK FLATLEY.

They're off—the Red Sox. Everybody up for the Carrigans.

Another pennant, with its attendant world's series, looms ahead for Boston. The team has hit its stride.

Twice yesterday they sent the league-looking Athletics down to defeat. Today they rest just three games from the fore. Their position is perfect for a quick jump to the front.

The players have the winning habit. Speaker is hitting again. When the $18,000 star is right, the rest of the team follows along. Tris' great bludgeon has again started to break up games—just like it did back in 1912.

Joe Wood is in form. Smoky Joe bore the major part of the burden of the great Sox climb to championship two years back. He is ready and eager to repeat. The other twirlers are going great guns. Even the rookies have the habit.

PITCHING STARS IN SHAPE.

Yesterday young Coumbe, the greenest kind of a youngster, held the slugging Mackmen to three little safeties. Leonard, Johnson, Bedient and Collins are all fit as trivets.

Foster, the sensation of the season, will be ready to perform when the team gets back home next week. The best pitching staff in baseball is on edge for big doings.

The spirit has the rest of the team in its grip. It took a wild four-run rally to pull the first game yesterday out of the fire.

A few weeks ago, and the Red Sox, meek as lambs, would have faded away in that ninth inning. Four big runs on clean, ringing wallops, changed the complexion of affairs in Philadelphia, however.

It took the heart out of the Macks. The second game was a Red Sox rout, pure and simple.

Two years ago, in July, the Boston team, then under the guidance of Jake Stahl, came to Philadelphia for a series. The outfit had been going well.

They were close to the front. They had gone around the circuit and cleaned up in good shape. But they were not considered dangerous. On past performances it loked like a flash in the pan.

When the Quaker series was over, however, the baseball world sat up and took notice. The Red Sox swept through the Mack defences like fire through a wooden box factory. They came home for a long stand.

That stand over, they were out at the head of the parade, and the trailers never did have a chance.

The stage setting today is exactly the same. The Carrigans have demolished the Macks at Shibe Park. They are all but at the front of the race.

In a few days they will be home to entertain all the western teams. They have the same great spirit that carried them through before.

TEAM GREATLY IMPROVED.

The pitchers are better. The infield, made up of youngsters, is faster even than the quartet of 1912. The outfield is the same—as far as players go—but better regarding results.

Hooper, Speaker and Lewis are far and away the greatest bunch of outfielders in any one team in baseball. And the three of them have been coming through with beautiful persistency.

Lewis has been out for a few days, on account of a battered hand. He will be back, though, when the squad performs again at Fenway Park. Meantime, young Rehg has been doing wonders filling in.

Carrigan and Cady, who did the catching the time the Boston team was winning a world's championship, are still on the job. Lewiston Bill is now managing, vice Jake Stahl, and a mighty good leader he is proving. Young Thomas, a rookie in the days of the former title, is now one of the best backstops in baseball.

The team has the players. What's more, the spirit. Last, but by no means least, the experience and the raw material for a grand coup is in the Red Sox. Unless all signs fail, history seems about due to repeat.

It sure looks today that in October we will again see Fenway Park jammed with thousands of baseball-maniacs, the strategic position for a dash to the pennant.

Several other teams are going—going crazy fans, while the Carrigan-led hosts are battling to take the big prize from the Giants, the Cubs or whatever team chances to come through on top in the old circuit.

On the long swing around the circuit just completed by the Red Sox tribe, twenty-eight games were played. The Sox won 18.

Here are the figures:

Cleveland	4	0
Detroit	2	2
St. Louis	3	1

They struck but one bad spot in Chicago, and after a troublous session there, came back and wreaked vengeance in New York and Philadelphia, though both teams had all season proved the hardest kind of nuts to crack.

HOW THE RACE STANDS.

Today they are playing the senators a double-header at the Capital. These same Senators have a slight edge on the Carrigans in the standing, going into the double fray. Very slight—a matter of .001 of one per cent., as the records are figured.

A double win, and Red Sox take third place. The Senator's rating, excluding today's games, is .537, that of the Red Sox .536.

And the Athletics, playing these troublesome Yankees, are but three games out there in front, with the Tigers, one full contest nearer, mingling with the Clevelands.

Tied with the Red Sox in fourth place are the surprising Browns. Three games further down the ladder are perched the White Sox, with their great pitching staff, ready to step ahead so soon as any of the pacemakers falter.

All in all, the American League race is quite the greatest little contest at the present moment that — famed for long hard races—it ever has been.

This morning the leading six teams stood thusly:

	Won.	Lost.	P. C.
Athletics	39	28	.582
Detroit	40	31	.563
Washington	36	31	.537
Boston	37	32	.536
St. Louis	37	32	.536
Chicago	34	33	.507

The Eastern teams are about to come home from a campaign in the West, and entertain the heroes from the valley of the Mississippi and adjacent parts.

SOX READY TO COME HOME.

After five games in three days at the centre of the grape juice industry, the Red Sox open up at Fenway Park, Tuesday, July 7th, and pastime on the home sward until July 24th, when they set out on another invasion of parts afar.

All the leaders, meantime, will be having a glorious internecine struggle. When this present Eastern home stand is ended, it should be quite possible to figure what two, or possible three teams, of the half dozen now making the going, will come down to the wire for the grand finals.

With all the leaders swapping punches, as it were, the fur is sure to fly. The Red Sox have the opportunity of a lifetime. By the game they have showed in the last two weeks they are ready to snap it up.

More power to them.

Along about October, it would help some to hear the boy with the megaphone shouting: "Batteries today for Boston, Wood and Carrigan; for New York, Mathewson and Meyers."

CELLAR CHAMPS OPEN WARFARE AT SOUTH END

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

Baseball warfare in the cellar is on today. The Brooklyns are here for a series, and the Braves will tackle them in a series that will temporarily decide whether the Braves are to remain down cellar or whether the Brooklyns will descend to the depths.

Of the two teams the Braves have made very much the better showing for the past month. Brooklyn has lost steadily, and one day dropped to last place in the race, but recovered next day. Only a few points separate the two teams.

The new men—Cather and Whitted—that Stallings secured from the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for Hub Perdue, will be here and in Boston uniforms by the time the game begins, and it is possible that the Boston manager may put one of them right to work.

The storm, which caused a postponement of yesterday's game with the Phillies, is expected to be far away from here by the time the holiday games are played tomorrow. There will be a morning battle at 10:30 and one in the afternoon at 3 o'clock. A double-header is billed for Monday with the Dodgers.

Dunn Will Stand by His Baltimore Team

NEW YORK, July 3.—President Barrow of the International League and the board of directors of that organization held a meeting in New York, but none of the magnates would discuss the purpose of the meeting. It is thought, however, that the gathering was called to act upon the proposed transfer of the Baltimore club to Richmond of the Virginia League. Jack Dunn, owner of the Baltimore club, denied that he would leave Baltimore.

Four for One Given in Baseball Trade

ST. JOSEPH, MO., July 3.—Owner Rourke of the Omaha Western League baseball club, has concluded a deal with the Cleveland American League club whereby Catcher Shectak of the Omaha club goes to Cleveland.

Rourke will get four players from Cleveland, Pitcher Styles, Catcher Kruger, Shortstop Dunlop and another not yet named.

RACE FOR MOTOR PACED TITLE AT BEACH TONIGHT

RACING PROGRAM.

Motor-paced race, (twenty-five miles), George Wiley, Syracuse; Leon Didier, France.

Two-mile amateur handicap, Australian pursuit race for professionals, five-mile open for amateurs, one-mile invitation for amateurs, one-mile professional and three novice races.

Two nights of holiday racing have been arranged for the bike fans at the Revere Cycle Track.

Tonight the special match race for the motor-paced championship between George Wiley, the American champion, and Leon Didier, the French title holder, will be ridden. The regular list of amateur and professional events will be run in connection with this race.

Tomorrow night Wiley, Didier, Carman and Lawrence will clash in a four-cornered one-hour motor-paced race. Besides this a special card of holiday events will be run off, including an Australian pursuit race, betwen Mike and the Barber and Silvio Pecci.

The race between Didier and Wiley tonight will settle beyond all doubt the motor-paced supremacy, as there has been a long standing dispute over the relative merits of these two riders ever since their first race.

Wiley claims to be in perfect shape. He has had a long rest, and has ridden very few races since his recovery. But in the races in which he has appeared the little Syracuse star has displayed all his old-time form and expects to give Didier the race of his life.

Didier is riding as fast as he ever did. In fact he is showing more speed in each race. He is supremely confident that his great speed will prove too much for Wiley.

The matching of Mike the Barber and Pecci for the holiday night is sure to prove a ten strike, and one that will make a big hit with the fans as both men have large followings at the races. The two have been bitter rivals for many months, both on and off the track, and while they have met in several races, this is the first chance they have had to fight it out alone.

New England Tennis Star Loses to Vet

NEW YORK, July 3.—"Fred" G. Anderson, a veteran of the tennis courts, furnished the surprise in the Long Island championship by eliminating Charles L. Johnson, Jr., in straight sets on the King's County Tennis Club courts.

Johnston, who held the New England intercollegiate title last year, played the best tenis he is capable of, but the veteran's remarkable placing, play along the side lines, was too much for him.

CHAPTER TWO

Marie Antoinette in Prison

A MOMENT later the tall man in the cloak got up and left the room, followed in a few minutes by a slender, frightened girl. A moment's whispered conversation outside, and the bundle changed hands. Then the Chevalier was on his way and again Genevieve was alone in the city. As she walked slowly along the street, she was arrested by a notice that was posted up all over the bill boards, wherever one happened to appear:

REPUBLIC OF FRANCE!
LIBERTY OR DEATH!

All patriots are warned that the Chevalier de Maison Rouge is about to return to Paris to rescue the Austrian, Marie Antoinette. The description of the conspirator is as follows: Blue eyes, auburn hair, average size mouth, aquiline nose oval face, prominent chin.

For the Committee of Public Safety,
FOUQUIERE TINVILLE.

Genevieve stood in open-mouthed astonishment before the notice, not noticing the crowd that gathered about her. Then as she turned they closed in, and as she ran they were after her like a pack of hounds. Who knows, she might be an accomplice of the Chevalier de Maison Rouge, she certainly was not an ordinary peasant girl.

But Genevieve was not to be taken to prison, for a moment later Maurice Lindey with a small company of soldiers had intervened, and the mob dwindled away, leaving the girl free.

"Will you not let me see your face?" said the young man kindly, as the girl held up her cloak, and then as she tremblingly looked up at him, he started back.

"A kiss," he breathed, thinking her a peasant girl, but Genevieve was not offended. Instead she kissed her pink finger softly, and the young man crushed the hand against his lips.

"I love you!" he said impetuously; but the girl held up her hand.

"I am Genevieve Dixmer," she said, a little tremulously, and was off toward home before the man could answer her. Love could mean nothing for them.

"And she wasn't a peasant girl," he said tenderly to himself, then fiercely, "I MUST see her again."

Marie Antoinette and her daughter, under constant surveillance in the prison, were placed under special guards as soon as it was known that the Chevalier had returned. But already the Royalists had communicated with her. A note was sent in a roll, advising her to take exercise in the prison yard, and to look for a knotted handkerchief in her laundry. And in the meantime the Chevalier, under the assumed name of Morand, together with Dixmer had taken a house in the vicinity of the prison. Their idea was to burrow a hole into the prison so that the Queen might escape at a given signal. But the whereabout of the means of escape had yet to be decided upon.

Heloise Tison, daughter of the prison canteen keeper, carried the Queen's laundry each week. Through this girl, who was a devoted Royalist, they would communicate with Her Majesty. But, alas! Heloise, carrying a knotted handkerchief in the laundry one week, which was to notify the Queen that a message would soon arrive, was placed under suspicion by the guard, who examined the laundry for suspicious articles. The canteen keeper was threatened with arrest, and as the canteen itself was the place through which the Royalists intended to force an entrance, it would never do to have a stranger put in the old man's place now. Heloise would have to be more careful, and some other means of communication with the Queen would have to be devised. And in the meantime the work of burrowing into the prison went slowly forward.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THE INDICATIONS FAVOR IT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been keeping company with a very nice young lady of eighteen for several months. The other day our conversation turned to friendship and she told me that I was her best friend. She has also been writing to me weekly, all of which I have answered.

Now, would you infer by that that she cared for me?

PERPLEXED.

SHE likes you; of that there is no doubt. Persevere in your attentions, and I am quite sure love will follow.

DON'T TRY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am sixteen, and meet a boy every day, whom I have learned to care for. Now this boy speaks to me, but I don't think I should speak without knowing him, as it is not proper. How may I become acquainted? TROUBLED.

YOU are a nice, sensible girl to refuse to speak to a boy you don't know. Continue to be sensible by making no effort to meet him. All that will come to you in good time.

GIVE HER UP

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

On my arrival in his country four months ago I first met my seventeen-year-old girl cousin. It was a case of love (true love on my part) at first sight. She led me to believe she returned my love, but lately, both by words and actions, she has shown me her mind has either changed, or never was made up. I am very unhappy over it. R. L.

A GIRL of seventeen is too young to know her own mind, and it is unfair to her to ask it.

This is one reason why you should give her up. A second, and better, one is that she is your first cousin. First cousins should never marry.

NEVER, MY DEAR

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of fifteen and am deeply in love with my piano teacher, who has been teaching me for the last four years. He does not know that I love him. On account of my love for him I have neglected my music, which has brought about a little quarrel between the two of us. We are on friendly terms again as usual. Please aid me to gain his love. X. Y. Z.

I HOPE never to be guilty of helping any girl of fifteen to seek a man's love. Your music is more important, and if you find that your love for your teacher interferes with your progress, change teachers and let your new instructor be a woman.

One of the Most Sensational Stories Ever Written

The Yellow Ticket

Russia's Persecution of the Jews Fully Exposed

Adapted from the play presented by A. H. Woods at the Eltinge Theatre, New York City, and written by Michael Morton.

(Novelized)

By A. A. WATERBURY.

Copyright, 1914, International News Service.

"What induced you to go to Baron Andrey's house last night?"

The girl gathered her scattered forces now and tried to compel an audible voice from the narrowing of her parched throat.

"He told me if I was molested to come to him and he would protect me. I was to look upon him as a friend. This man"—and her heavy eyes traveled to Paviac with neither malice nor fear, only dead recognition—"this man had me driven from the hotel yesterday—and later he tried to force an entrance into my room. I went to Baron Andrey's to seek sanctuary—sanctuary, as I thought, in the house of a friend. I found myself in the house of a—brute. He told me that I could not escape the consequences of the Yellow Ticket. He said that I must accept the 'inevitable.' That meant him. When he tried to force me into his room I killed him."

Her strength was spent and Anna Mirrel finished her confession of murder simply and with no attempt to justify her deed. She did not tell Zoubatoff that a Jewish girl must dare anything to save her honor. Indeed, she was so numb that she scarcely remembered what it was all about. Even the tell-tale heart seemed not to beat in her frozen breast. She expected no mercy and she asked for none.

"What time was it when this happened?" asked her judge and jury.

She only stood with insensate, hanging head.

"Didn't you hear me? What time was it?"

"I don't know."

"You must know."

"How can I tell?" murmured the girl dully—and indeed she seemed past telling anything.

THE NIGHT AFTER

"Well, we will assume that it was about midnight. What did you do after you left the Baron's house? Who did you meet? Come, come, we want to know everything."

"I'm trying to tell you everything."

Anna clutched at her throat. It burned as dryly as if acid had seared its walls. She was conscious that her eyes burned, too, and that her head ached dully. Why did they not tell her she must die and let her rest in peace?

"I went home and waited for the morning. I thought, of course some one would surely come and take me. I waited and waited. Everything went on just as if nothing had happened. No one came for me. At last I could bear it no longer. I rushed out. I hoped they would take me. I wanted it to be over. No one noticed me. I walked and walked and walked for hours. Then people began looking at me and smiling—that frightened me."

The girl's voice died away weakly and instinctively she made as if to sit down.

"Go on. Stand up!" commanded Zoubatoff.

"Then one of your men brought me here. And that is all."

"We want a list of all your Jewish friends."

Now Anna's mind could not focus to strive in her own defence, but at that note of danger to those who erred in being Jews—and her friends—a gleam of reason came into the sombre wells of her eyes.

Skin Peeling Nature's Aid to New Complexion

Ordinary mercolized wax is a natural beautifier. By flecking off the devitalized surface skin, it merely hastens Nature's work. The fresh skin layer, brought gradually to view, exhibits the healthy, youthful color produced by capillary circulation. This because the capillaries are thus brought nearer the surface; also because the new skin is unsoiled by sun, wind or dirt. This wax, to be had at any drug store (an ounce will do), is put on nightly like cold cream, washed off mornings with warm water. Its work usually is completed in from seven to ten days, long enough not to show too marked results from day to day, or cause discomfort or [illegible].

A face bath to remove wrinkles, made by dissolving an ounce of powdered [illegible] in a half pint witch hazel, is another natural beautifier, since its astringent and tonic properties smooth out wrinkles in accordance with Nature's own process.—ADVERTISEMENT.

Up-to-Date Jokes

"You are absolutely impossible, Ellen," said the mistress of the house, who was a notorious fault-finder. "I thought you said you were a lady's maid?"

"And so I was, ma'am," calmly replied the girl, "until I came to work for you."

For half an hour they had lingered over their good-bye. But at last Robert rose to go, and this time he meant it.

"So soon, Bobby dear?" sighed Mollie. "Couldn't you stay for just a little longer? Must you really go?"

"I must, darling, though I would give ten years of my life, or sacrifice everything I have, to stay for one short hour with you."

"But—but why, dear?" she begged. "Why have you to go so early tonight?"

"Because, dearest," he answered, sadly but resolutely, "it's our union meeting tonight, and if I don't go now I shall be fined ten cents."

At a recent duel the parties discharged their pistols without effect, whereupon one of the seconds interposed and proposed that the combatants should shake hands. To this the other second objected as unnecessary.

"Their hands," said he, "have been shaking for half an hour."

LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were strong [illegible] and in New York gains included St. Paul 1, Chesapeake & Ohio 1⅛, Canadian Pacific 1, Southern Pacific ¾, Missouri Pacific ⅝, Reading [illegible], Lehigh Valley ¾, New Haven ½, Steel ⅝, Amalgamated ⅝, American Smelting 1⅝, Northern Pacific ½, Baltimore & Ohio ¾, Union Pacific ⅝, Utah Copper ⅝ and Westinghouse [illegible].

In Boston New Haven was up a point and Boston & Maine [illegible]. United Fruit, which has touched the [illegible], was off 1⅛ at 142½. Among [illegible] here were Butte & Superior [illegible] by 1½, Alaska Gold [illegible], Massachusetts Gas ⅝ and Shoe 1⅛.

DULL AND HIGHER AT START.

Stocks were dull but higher at the opening. Within a few minutes trading became brisker in New York, first hour sales aggregating nearly 87,000. In the second hour [illegible] to only about 37,000. The trend was upward, and by afternoon the list averaged much higher. Among the strongest issues were American Smelting, Canadian Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, General Electric, Northern Pacific and Westinghouse. There was hope on Wall Street that the Morgan visit to the White House would lead President Wilson to give business interests more consideration. This may have been a sustaining influence. Covering because the market is on the eve of a holiday [illegible] also favored higher prices. But business was wholly professional and in spite of the trend sentiment continued to be bearish. Americans were firmer in London. There have been [illegible] for the condition of State and national banks upon June 30. The delay in the national call was due to preparations for inaugurating the federal reserve system.

COPPER METAL FIRMER.

Copper metal is now upon a 13¾ cents a pound basis and that market was firmer. London warrants were steady. It is said that buying of electrolytic for domestic and foreign account this week totalled about 40,000,000 pounds. The improvement in the metal market was reflected by advances for the shares of mining companies.

UNITED FRUIT ERRATIC.

The price movement of United Fruit was erratic and the feature of the Boston market. It opened lower, advanced more than a point and then sold at 142, a new low record. Its low was touched on a ten-share transaction. Stocks ex-dividend here today were North Butte 50c.; National Carbon common $1.50; Reece Buttonhole 30c.; International Buttonhole 10c.; Reece Folding 10c.

INVESTMENTS WERE FEW.

Although an immense sum of money was disbursed in interest and dividend payments the first of this month but little has been re-distributed in investments. Bond buying has not been on a large scale, but of much more importance than investments in standard stocks. One broker is quoted as saying: "I have never known July investments to cut such an insignificant figure." A prominent Chicago business man just back from the Old World says Europeans believe the United States is ruined, but that he found conditions abroad, compared with those in this country, far from good.

Americans whose foresight has been demonstrated by their great success in life are sure that this country is going to have future prosperity without parallel in its history.

Governor Walsh Takes First Official Step to Aid Salem

Promptly Acts on the American's Suggestion That the State Help Rebuild the Stricken City.

The Sunday AMERICAN'S suggestion of Massachusetts State aid to stricken Salem has found a ready response.

Senator McCarthy acted promptly in the Senate, for which he deserves commendation.

Governor Walsh has promptly taken the first official step in the matter.

IT IS LITTLE ENOUGH, INDEED, IF IT IS ALL. But must it be all?

Technical people say the State has no power to do more. Are they right? They quote a decision of the Supreme Court, which declared that the Legislature had no power to authorize the City of Boston to issue bonds to help itself rebuild the portions of the city which were destroyed by the great conflagration of 1873.

It is true that the Supreme Court DID say that money could not be raised by taxation for anything that was NOT A PUBLIC USE, and that helping people to rebuild their city WAS NOT A PUBLIC USE.

But the reasoning of that case was lost. It was made in a day when the rights of private property had a more potent voice against the general welfare than it has today. Since then we have constantly aided speculative schemes of our corporations by extending the doctrine of the public use. What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander.

We have aided mills by the exercise of the power of the eminent domain, however much the courts have quibbled about it. We have aided the railroads to get rid of a disagreeable stockholder who was blocking a lease, or the extension of a branch road, all on the ground that it was for a public use.

It is apparent to most people that whatever is reasonably calculated to restore to life one of our ancient cities and keep her industries and her workingmen within the confines of our own Commonwealth is for a greater public use than aiding a railroad in some speculative enterprise in which, perhaps, not even a majority of its stockholders will profit.

The court has the power to overrule its own mistaken opinions. If the decision of Lowell against the City of Boston lies across the path of our vital progress, let us give the present Supreme Court a chance to correct it.

And let us always remember that in no other country in the world is a court allowed to nullify an act of the people's representatives on the ground that it is beyond their power. Let us also remember that this power was originally USURPED by the United States Supreme Court and that it is exercised without the authority of our Constitution, and was never within the contemplation of the framers of our government.

Let us help Salem by whatever means may be most efficient and let those raise the question of its constitutionality who care so to do.

Let Everybody's Motto Be "Safety First"

The Chamber of Commerce has embarked upon a campaign which can lead to the conquest of a great evil which stalks among us, mercilessly levying tribute upon life and limb and property.

The Chamber of Commerce has declared war against the habit of carelessness in the conduct of our persons in the midst of dangerous instrumentalities of a modern metropolis.

Four hundred and twenty-six accidents on the streets of New York recently, occasioning 173 deaths, were analyzed. It was found that about 90 per cent. of these accidents were due to carelessness on the part of the public, either of the person injured or of someone else.

Last year more than 90,000 persons were killed or injured in Massachusetts alone through industrial accidents. This is more than are hurt in most wars. Of this number, 45,000 need not have been hurt if somebody had not been careless.

Now, consider that these 45,000 people who were needlessly injured were all hurt in a single year, and that this tribute to human carelessness goes on in like proportions year after year. In ten years, at this rate, almost half a million people are hurt in Massachusetts alone who ought not to have been hurt.

If we will all co-operate with the Chamber of Commerce we shall be able to reduce the danger of these accidents both to ourselves and to others.

Do you realize, readers, that 90,000 accidents in Massachusetts a year means an accident to every 32 people? Do you realize the danger in which you stand today with accidents, when one in every 32 of the people of Massachusetts is being injured every year? If you were taken out into a field with 31 other people and told in the course of a day that unless you were exceedingly careful one of you would be injured, don't you think that YOU WOULD BE EXCEEDINGLY CAREFUL? That is just your situation today. You are running that danger through your own carelessness and the carelessness of those who come in contact with you every year.

If every man does his part to establish a more careful habit, the splendid campaign which the Boston Chamber of Commerce has inaugurated will be successful, and we shall cease to be in the great danger which now confronts the people who are a part and parcel of our very tense and impatient modern American civilization.

Let us get the habit—of carefulness.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

They Were a Little Reckless in the Old Days

Come to think of it, the Declaration of Independence wasn't such a safe and sane document at the time it was signed.

Proof of His Sincerity

Conan Doyle says that all idealists are likely to get into a mess. He was referring to Mr. Wilson. And he could have pointed to Sherlock Holmes' friend, Dr. Watson, to show that he has always held this view.

Watchful Waiting

Just as soon as Huerta can come over there and help them, those Ulsterites are going to war.

Blackballed

Despite all Pinchot's influence he couldn't get Perkins into the Malefactors of Great Wealth Club.

He'll Soon Learn His Mistake

The English singer who says there are no critics in this country ought to spend half an hour helping Secretary Tumulty open the White House mail.

Outlawed

If mediation lasts much longer Huerta can set up the claim that the statute of limitations has run against his failure to salute the flag.

Now We'll Never Get It

Apparently the I. C. C. has referred the rate decision to the mediation court.

In Other Words, Non-Existent

Bill Barnes wants to be boss of the Saratoga Convention, which is only a psychological convention. But, then, for a number of years Mr. Barnes has been addicted only to psychological bossing.

Just Before the Morning After

WILLIE'S home in bed today, minus half an eye;
Tommy can't go out and play—seven fingers shy.
One of Harry's legs is gone; Freddie's lost an ear;
Charlie's got a bandage on, but his hair's not here.
Parents of these shattered boys always used to say:
"Let the children make a noise—Independence Day."

HEAPS of ashes, smoking still, serve to mark the spot.
Where the widow on the hill had her house and lot.
All along the thoroughfare snarls of tangled wires
And heaps of cinders here and there mark last evening's fires.
All is over now and done, but no more we say:
"Let the children have their fun Independence Day."

As We Predicted

The suffs couldn't back the President off the Party Platform. Before they make another effort they'd better take a few lessons from John Bull.

Necessary Precaution

The picket fence that has been built around Battery Park in New York is obviously intended to protect the citizens of that city from ocean liners on foggy mornings.

A Ray of Hope

If the automobile arresting cops really can make the machines run to the pound we know a lot of people who will leave their machines out in the streets unattended.

Uncivilized Warfare

If Villa intends to fill that $1,800 bathtub with soap and water and put his captives in it the whole world ought to rise up and denounce him as a torturer.

In-Shoots

The sweet, lovely girl that every other girl likes is seldom very popular with the boys.

The mollycoddle boy occasionally gives the other kids a surprise when cornered in a fight.

Lots of ministers fail because there is no team-work in the congregation.

It is astonishing how nice the chronic home growler can be when he g[illegible]s out in company.

Be[illegible]ot deceived by appearances. The [illegible]th of the yellow cur are as sharp[illegible]s those of the thoroughbred of th[illegible]ench show.

Love's lottery contains a lot of things that are worse than blanks.

Many an ordinary cuss has been carried on to prosperity by becoming the partner of a winner.

Experience that puts a fringe on a fellow's trousers is better than that which turns his hair white.

When we are trying to impress people that we are of artistic temperament they are apt to term it "bug."

When listening to the fool talk of the mother, one often wonders how the babe can be expected to retain its wits.

Another Discoverer

Mr. Root has discovered that he will be unable to serve another term as United States Senator. He must have made this discovery by placing his ear closely to the ground and listening attentively for the last few weeks.

He Can Do That Himself

We observe that Mr. Bryan hasn't applied to Congress for any assistant to help him collect Chautauqua gate receipts.

Hope for Huerta

We should not be surprised to learn at any minute that a certain prominent Mexican general had taken a sudden departure for Europe. It was reported yesterday that he had hired a lawyer.

Marine Intelligence

At last accounts the Ship of State was still nosing her way through a heavy fog which the officers were unable to penetrate with their glasses.

A Trouble That Can Be Corrected

We are at a loss to understand why so many juries fail to perform their functions properly. It is always so easy to fix them.

A Mistake Somewhere

By a curious oversight Elihu Root was not given a title of nobility when the King dispensed birthday honors among those who had served England well in the last year.

Afraid to Hurt Each Other

Apparently Johnson and Moran fought that battle under the French duelling code.

Keen Competition

Now France has entered the fast vessel competition. The Gascogne is fast on the coast of Portugal.

How a Real Bear Broke Up a Gay French Party

What happened when the creature whom the dancers thought to be one of their friends, in an unusually clever disguise, turned out to be a big, brown bear—an entertaining article in next Sunday's Boston AMERICAN. In the same edition will be found th following great exclusive features:

Funny Caricatures of Roosevelt's Visit to Spain

Rabajoi, the noted French caricaturist, has his imagination stirred by the Colonel's recent journey, and here he shows the ex-President in an extremely mixed company, including Don Quixote, Spanish dancers and King Alfonso.

A Wife's Story of the Underworld

Third of the series of surprising revelations of conditions that breed vice and crime, written especially for this newspaper by Mrs. Lillian Rosenberg, the widow of "Lefty Louie," whose testimony sent Becker back to the death-house.

Why "The Truth" has Startled Wicked Paris

Elbert Hubbard interprets the message contained in the new painting which is more highly praised and more hotly condemned than any picture ever exhibited in the salons of the French capital.

How Our Laws Will Be Made by Electricity.

Detailed description of the wonderful new device which will "ring up" votes like coins in a cash register and save Congress more than $200,000 worth of time a year.

Just Why Some Women's Bathing Suits Are So Immode

In an article which will be read with unusual interest at this time of the year, Dr. William Lee Howard points out that it is the mind's clothing, and not the body's, which marks the difference between modesty and immodesty.

The Art of Making New Fashions Out of Old

Lady Duff-Gordon, the famous Lucile of London, shows how we are helping ourselves to the fashions of the near past, and presents in connection with her remarks some striking photographs of a number of her most delightful new creations.

Why Lovers Must Be Liars

Professor David Edgar Rice, the distinguished psychologist, shows how true passion "Short Circuits" the higher mental and moral centres, thus making possible the latest delightfully nonsensical love letters by rational beings.

It's High Time to Make Boylston Street Passable

Mr. H. P. Nawn, the contractor, who is building the Boylston street subway, and is impairing the utility of Boylston street, now says he may not be able to get out of that locality before September first. Some weeks ago he promised to be out of there by July first.

The reason for his delay may be compelling and yet may not. He says he is sorry for the merchants on Boylston street who have been so much injured by the condition in which he keeps that highway. We presume he is sorry for these merchants, for he certainly knows the great harm he is causing them to suffer.

But assuming that what Mr. Nawn says is true, yet is there no reason why he cannot make Boylston street really passable, SO FAR AS THE SUBWAY HAS BEEN FINISHED UNDER THE STREET? It is a serious matter to the merchants on Boylston street and most unfair that they should be obliged to suffer this special injury when everybody else is compensated for the losses which they sustain by reason of some public work.

If these merchants cannot obtain damages for the loss of their business, then the obligation on the part of the public officials to see that they are not unnecessarily injured through the indifference of contractors or their incompetents is doubly great.

Is Earth Safe from Collision?

By EDGAR LUCIEN LARKIN

Q. "IS our small earth absolutely safe from collision with any other planets or the sun?

2. "If so, who and what is the great government that guides them all so correctly in their courses?

3. "Why is the most brilliant star in the heavens called the 'Dog Star'?"

A.—1. No, our small earth is not absolutely safe from collision with bodies in space, but is safe from collision with any planet in the solar system and with the sun. To be hit by a planet, either the earth or the planet must leave its orbit.

This is impossible, and it is also impossible that the earth can leave its orbit and fall to the sun. The earth is being hit by millions of meteors daily, from the size of pinheads up to the largest, several hundred tons in weight.

The largest that I ever saw weighed twenty-two tons—in the fair in Portland, Ore., There is an iron mass supposed to be a meteor in Mexico, estimated to weigh sixteen tons, and one from Greenland shown at the Centennial Exhibition somewhat more.

But if there is at the bottom of the hole in the ground at Canon Diablo, in Arizona, a real meteor, and it doubtless is a meteor, then it weighs millions of tons. The earth may be hit at any minute by a meteor or comet. I have seen perhaps one thousand meteors in museums.

2. The force of gravitation and reaction against it, called centrifugal tendency due to motion of planets or orbits, is the great government that now rules or guides every motion of every planet, moon, asteroid and comet now belonging to our own and all other solar systems.

3. The giant sun, the bright star Sirius, is now called the "Dog Star" from the very ancient and curious custom of personification. The great nations of remote antiquity personified every activity of nature—that is, compared them to living men or animals.

They didn't know a thing of any law of nature, so they said that motion is caused by living animals, because only animals have the inscrutably mysterious power of moving themselves. No wonder the ancients were astonished to see an animal move itself. And the wonder has vastly increased now, for the ablest scientific man cannot possibly see how an animal is able to move.

The overflowing of the Nile was the chief event in all of Egypt. Without this pouring of water over the land once each year, the valley would be a desert. The Egyptians at a certain period in their long history noticed that when they first saw the star Sirius early in the morning before sunrise the Nile River began to rise and pour over the banks. This personified Sirius as a watchdog, watching the sun and the Nile and the land of Egypt, its people, destiny and harvests.

The Egyptian name of the Nile was Siris, and the faithful dog watching in the sky was finally named Sirius. Centuries later their horrible religion taught that it was necessary to murder or sacrifice a dog to the star Sirius to secure its aid in growing grains and herds. This terrible habit of slaughtering animals to propitiate imaginary gods descended to the Greeks and Romans. The Romans named the stars near Sirius the constellation Canis Major (the Great Dog).

But all this is pure myth, or astrology—the whole mass of astrological myths and of killing innocent and intelligent animals make a blotch on the career of man and a curse to the human race. The entire mass was elaborated long before a law of nature had been discovered, or prior to anybody being aware that the universe is based on rigid law.
